The Title

Author

23 February 2019

This is some text before a section. It shouldn't be indented. Each section should start on a new page (but subsections shouldn't).

This is a section

This is some test text. This is formatted in italics and bold, with - various – dashes—, and trailing dots…

'These quotes should be curly,' and "so should these." There should be a blank line before the next paragraph:

And then there should be some text $^{\text{in superscript}}$ and $_{\text{in subscript}}$, and a footnote[*] with a star, a footnote[†] with a dagger, and this should be `monospace`.

Subsection

Test text test text test text.

> This is a quote block. It should be indented slightly and shouldn't contain a line break.

> This is a quoted line block. It should be indented slightly > and have a line break after 'slightly', and formatting.

After this line there should be stars.

* * *

This is a new paragraph after the stars. This text is Small Caps. Here is a pound sign (£), a euro sign (€), and three letters with accents: ëóû.

[†]Another footnote.

This is a second section

And this is even more italic text.
